Applied Theology

NEW! Children, Families and God

Alexander, L. (2012) Italy: Evangelista Media

Children's Spirituality

Family,
Theology of

Intergeneratio
nal

This book is a good read from cover to cover, but also great to dip into. Lynn Alexander speaks with authority, passion and with the experience and anecdotal evidence of a practitioner. The research and evidence is based in the UK — Scotland in fact — so it's not American, which is refreshing in the area of ministry.

Liz Hall

Why Can't They Get Along? A Conversation Between a Muslim, a Jew and a Christian

El-Alami, D., Cohn-Sherbok, D. & Chryssides, G. (2014) Oxford: Lion Hudson

World
Religions

Dialogue

Inter-Faith

Ethics

Having co-authored an earlier volume on religious approaches to ethical issues (Love, Sex and Marriage) this text provides a valuable insight into the manner in which adherents of different faiths might engage in honest, constructive and meaningful dialogue within the broad categories of teachings, practices, ethics and social issues. Each author outlines their own view on each of the sixteen areas covered and then responds to the views of their fellow authors; as a result the text allows the reader to feel that a discussion is actually taking place.

Malcolm Martin

NEW! Family Ministry - A Comprehensive Guide

Garland Diana, R. (2012 - Second Edition) USA: InterVarsity Press

Family

This is currently the definitive work on Family Ministry and is a 'dip in' 655 page reference book. Well organised and full of research, case studies and practical suggestions.

NEW! A Year of Biblical Womanhood: How a Liberated Woman Found Herself Sitting on Her Roof, Covering Her Head, and Calling Her Husband 'Master'

Held Evans, Rachel (2012) Nashville: Thomas Nelson

Women

Biblical Interpretation

The words misogyny and patriarchy are being used increasingly frequently in current affairs. Yet in many parts of the Christian world it seems as if such things are tolerated and even promoted! Rachel's book uses humour and good writing to help shine light on what the bible really does and does not say about "womanhood". Its accessibility does not mean it is theologically lightweight — in fact the book is an excellent teacher. I would recommend it for personal or group study use (young and old, women and men!). Be prepared to cry with laughter and anger.

Annette Wicks

Christian Congregational Music: Performance, Identity and Experience

Ingalls, M., Landau, C. & Wagner, T. (2013) Farnham: Ashgate.

Performing Theology

Worship

Churches

Although an academic book, it has helped me to rediscover some of the theories of worship and congregational expectations. It highlights some of the main challenges facing leaders of congregational worship and, from an SA perspective, the need to be aware of the pressures of preserving a Salvationist semiotic whilst embracing other music styles and genres.

It highlights the emergence of new musical identities and 'branded' Christian worship songs.

John Martin

NEW! Perspectives on Family Ministry - 3 views

Jones, Timothy P. (2009) Nashville: B and H Publishing Group

Family

Intergenerational

Timothy Jones has edited together case studies and arguments for and against three models detailing how Family Ministry is being practised in America. It's an emotive read as one of the models is pretty fundamental with many non-negotiables. The cases for and against the various models are passionate, yet gracious, and reference is made to research and resources that still hold up in 2017.

Personal Jesus: How Popular Music Shapes Our Souls

Marsh, Clive (2012) Grand Rapids: Baker Academic

Music and Religion

Theology

Pop music is an ever-present force shaping people, especially in the West. In an era when pop music has superseded sacred music at events such as weddings and funerals, it asks how pop music works and what role it plays in our lives.

The book explores the theological significance of the ways pop music is listened to and used, and how it is impacting Christian faith and theology.

John Martin

NEW! Reading for the Common Good

Smith, C. Christopher (2016) Downer's Grove: IVP Books

Learning

Mission

Transitioning

Spiritual Life

It is a really interesting idea covering what the author calls Slow Church, i.e. the cultivation of community, engagement of the social imagination and human flourishing. He touches on preaching as well as Lectio Divina and, although a rigorous text, referring to Brueggemann, Palmer, Taylor, Senge and others, it is written in a straightforward, practical style.

Winette Field

Who's Afraid of Relativism? Community, Contingency and Creaturehood

Smith, James K. A. (2014) Grand Rapids: Baker Academic

Postmodernism

Radical
Orthodoxy

The relatively slim volumes that comprise 'The Church and Postmodern Culture' series of texts are not always the easiest to read, requiring some depth of engagement with the secular philosophies of postmodernism. Those who have tackled the earlier volumes, such as 'Who's Afraid of Postmodernism?' or 'What Would Jesus Deconstruct?', will find that Smith adopts a relatively familiar approach of seeking to apply key insights from his chosen sources to the context of the contemporary church. Not everyone will agree that the kind of pragmatism he advocates can actually work effectively to combat fears about relativism, but the journey of thought is worth observing.

Malcolm Martin

Biblical Studies

Mark and Method

Anderson, Janice Capel & Moore, Stephen D. (2008) Minneapolis: Fortress Press

Biblical
Interpretation

Narrative
Criticism

Feminist
Criticism

Social Criticism, Cultural

Reader-
Response
Criticism

Fairly comprehensive but easily understandable overview of key new approaches to biblical criticism. Each approach is explained with examples and directly applied to passages from Mark's Gospel as a case study. There is also a book called 'Judges and Method' which does the same thing, using the book of Judges and differing approaches.

Ben Selfe

Jesus Through Middle Eastern Eyes

Bailey, K. E. (2008) London: SPCK

New Testament

This gives a useful insight into the context of the New Testament. Familiar stories will be redefined in their meaning and application. A really solid, fresh and exciting book enlivening Scripture.

Paul Hilditch

This is an excellent book on understanding the gospels through the eyes of middle eastern culture. The insights gained really open up the Scriptures.

Chris Baldwin

Do We Need the New Testament?

Goldingay, J. (2015) Downers Grove: IVP

Biblical Studies

Old Testament

New Testament

Recognising that most Christians are more familiar with the Old Testament as referenced in the New, rather than by actual readings of the original texts, John Goldingay continues his efforts to promote a thoughtful Christian reading of the 'First Testament' (his preferred title). Although written in a slightly less conversational style than his volumes in the 'Old Testament for Everyone' series, Goldingay almost always manages to communicate in an engaging manner, making this an accessible introduction to aspects of Old Testament theology.

Malcolm Martin

Sabbath

Heschel, A. J. (1951) New York: Farrar, Strauss and Girox

Sabbath

Rest

Time

Space

This is an astonishing work on the theology of Sabbath from Jewish theologian, Heschel. For me, this work is a work of art. Heschel offers a radical, progressive view on the Sabbath that offers application to the life of a spiritual leader. It is worth spending the time to unpack the unfamiliar concepts and narrative found within the text, as it offers insight into another realm of thinking. Through this I hope you will find it speaks to your own understanding of Sabbath.

Kevin Avis

The Source

Michener, J. A. (1965) New York: Random House

History

Archaeology

In his signature style of grand storytelling, in this novel James A. Michener transports us back thousands of years to the Holy Land. Through the discoveries of modern archaeologists excavating the site of Tell Makor, Michener vividly re-creates life in an ancient city and traces the profound history of the Jewish people – from the persecution of the early Hebrews, the rise of Christianity and the Crusades, to the founding of Israel and the modern conflict in the Middle East. An epic tale of love, strength and faith, The Source is a richly written saga that encompasses the history of Western civilisation and the great religious and cultural ideas that have shaped our world.

Paul Hilditch

A Christian's Pocket Guide to Loving the Old Testament

Motyer, Alex (2015) Fearn: Christian Focus

Old Testament

A short book on a big theme that is simple, but not simplistic. Many find the Old Testament difficult or inaccessible or both — this slim volume helps make the connection between the Old and the New Testaments.

Sarah King

Sitting at the Feet of Rabbi Jesus: How the Jewishness of Jesus can Transform your Faith

Spangler, Ann & Tverberg, Lois (2009) Grand Rapids: Zondervan.

Jesus

This is a very readable exploration of Jesus in his own original Jewish context. The insights into the 1st century Jewish background of many of the Gospel settings shed new light on Jesus and his ministry.

Chris Baldwin

Introducing Theological Interpretation of Scripture: Recovering a Christian Practice

Treier, D. J. (2008) Grand Rapids: Baker Academic

Theological
Interpretation
of Scripture

Biblical Studies

This is a very good and helpful introduction to the whole subject of interpreting the Bible from a theological perspective. After the rise of historical critical, literary and reader response approaches to interpreting Scripture, the theological approach is making a comeback. Treier gives a really good overview of why this has developed and some of the ways in which this is being taken forward by theological interpreters.

David Taylor

Theological Interpretation of the New Testament: A book-by-book survey

Vanhoozer, Kevin J. (2005) Grand Rapids: Baker Academic

Theological
Interpretation
of Scripture

New Testament

Kevin Vanhoozer edits a book which covers every book of the New Testament, in which a whole range of contemporary theological interpreters of Scripture give us an overview of each NT book. The theological interpretation of Scripture is making a comeback and this is a very helpful example of how each book of the NT can be approached in this respect.

David Taylor

NEW! How to Preach and Teach the Old Testament for all Its Worth

Wright, Christopher (2016) Grand Rapids: Zondervan

Preaching

Teaching

Old Testament

A straightforward book which gives insight into how to preach and teach the Old Testament. Chris Wright's use of illustrations to help understand how to preach the Old Testament is second to none. Highly recommended!

Sarah King

Chaplaincy

The Hospital Chaplain's Handbook

Cobb, Mark (2005) Norwich: Canterbury Press

Chaplaincy

Death

Bereavement

This is a practical and informative guide aimed both at newly appointed and experienced chaplains. It covers the role of chaplaincy in the NHS today, a very useful chapter on clinical work, the spiritual dimension of illness, support of the dying and bereaved, professional practice: ethics, boundaries and confidentiality. The final section of this book includes a selection of prayers and readings for routine and emergency pastoral situations.

NEW! Faithful Improvisation? Theological Reflections on Church Leadership

Alexander, Loveday & Highton, Mike (2016) London: Church House Publishing

Leadership

Benedictine

Church History

This is a great read. Although Anglican, it contextualises current thoughts about leadership within the wider church using biblical studies, theology, history, and with a nod towards non-Anglican denominational structures/ideas.

I think it would work well as additional reading for anyone who has read Hill's 'Leadership in the Salvation Army'. There is no index but good footnotes and the chapter titles are not obscure. The FAOC report itself is fascinating, providing lots of food for thought.

Winette Field

Holy War: The Crusades and Their Impact Today

Armstrong, Karen (2002) New York: Bantam Doubleday Dell Publishing Group

Crusades

Church History

Islam

Holy War is a well respected historian's account of the Crusades and their impact on today's world. This is a good read for people wanting to have a better understanding of the roots of some of the global tensions in today's world.

Naomi Clifton

1865: The Year That Made The Salvation Army

Farthing, Peter (2015) Sydney: Carpenter Media

Salvation Army
History

Although short, this is a very interesting account of the beginnings of The Salvation Army. It includes information about the early ministry of William and Catherine Booth and the events of 1865.

Michelle Wheeler

Leadership in The Salvation Army: A Case Study in Clericalisation

Hill, Harold (2006) Milton Keynes: Paternoster

Leadership Salvation Army Officership

This is a must have if you are exploring leadership in The Salvation Army. It is 'a review and analysis of Salvation Army history, focused on the process of clericalisation'. Hill explores leadership in The Salvation Army since its inception and identifies how leaders - initially functional - slowly assumed more status. This book opens up discussion on the identity of The Salvation Army and the nature of leadership - is it about function or status? Key points in history, including amendments to the commissioning ceremony, are discussed in great depth. An excellent, scholarly resource, with all sorts of implications to explore!

Michael Hutchings

The Forgotten Ways: Reactivating the Missional Church

Hirsch, Alan (2006) Grand Rapids: Brazos Press

Mission Discipleship Church Planting Apostolic Ministry

This is an excellent book on considering how to engage with the 'apostolic genius' of the early church and how to apply these same principles today.

Chris Baldwin

Those Incredible Booths

Larsson, John (2015) London: Salvation Books

Salvation Army
History

This is an informative book about William and Catherine Booth and their eight children. The style in which it is written makes it easily accessible.

Michelle Wheeler

A Church for Every Context: An Introduction to Theology and Practice

Moynagh, Michael & Harrold, Philip (2012) London: SCM Press

Fresh
Expressions

Church
Planting

New Contextual
Church

Emerging
Church

Mission and Outreach

This is an excellent theological and practical exploration of fresh expressions of church. It explores the trends, theological approaches and the growing literature and debate around these types of church and proposes some methodologies for starting and growing these types of church to maturity.

Chris Baldwin

I think this book should be a resource for all spiritual leaders.

While it runs to nearly 500 pages it is full of great advice that is contemporary and helps especially with future thinking in the church. It also addresses the subjects of discipleship, worship, community and sustainability.

There are many good ideas that are relevant to current and future SA ministry.

Richard Mingay

Excellent book for those interested in pioneer ministry. Moynagh gives a theological rationale to new expressions of church, speaks into the context the UK Churches are finding themselves, while also giving very practical advice on developing new communities of faith.

Caroline Heward

Hidden Treasure

Ruthven, L. (Ed) (2014) Melbourne: Salvo Publishing

Feminist

Ecclesiology

Each chapter is the testimony of successive women officers in The Salvation Army. The profundity is in the common narrative of the invisibility of women in leadership. The book does not stop at that point, but offers role models and challenges for today's Army and its individual people.

Paul Hilditch

Doctrine

The Promise of Trinitarian Theology

Gunton, C. E. (2003) London: T & T Clark Ltd.

Trinity

Community

This is a contemporary theological classic which rescues Trinitarian thinking from the clutches of Augustine. Gunton places the Trinity at the heart of Christian faith and practice, arguing that independence and inter-dependence of the members of the Godhead provide a model for a faith community. He uses scripture to show how our understanding of the Trinity ought to impact how we live our lives both within the faith community and more importantly in the world. An excellent and accessible read.

Andrew Bale

Divine Teaching: An Introduction to Christian Theology

McIntosh, M. (2009) Oxford: Wiley Blackwell

Theology

Doctrine

There are a number of good books that offer a good overview and introduction to the sometimes complex study of theology. This is a relatively recent book that is a core text and suggested introductory reading for the Christian Theology and Practice degree taught at WBC and, as such, is a good book to have on the shelf and to dip into on a variety of theological subjects.

David Taylor

Unapologetic: Why Despite Everything Christianity Can Still Make Surprising Emotional Sense

Spufford, F. (2013) London: Faber & Faber

Apologetics

Spufford has written a book which is fresh, provoking and painfully honest. He has been able to provide a convincing argument on how faith can work in the twenty-first century. This book does come with a health warning though... Spufford does use somewhat colourful language, which does reflect the gritty reality of twenty-first century living.

Caroline Heward

The Holy Spirit and Spiritual Gifts

Turner, M. (2009) Carlisle: Hendrickson Publishers

The Holy Spirit

Spiritual Gifts

Spiritual Life

Excellent study of the development of pneumatology, which is easy to read without heavy theological language. Turner's work is a really good overview of the Holy Spirit in the Old Testament and the New Testament. He clearly identifies both the need for spiritual gifts within the church yet also candidly identifies potential abuses and handles Paul's view of the Holy Spirit and spiritual gifts extremely well. With the perspective that views Paul as a reactive writer concerned with the running of the church, rather than a theologian setting out his systematic theology, Turner still manages to present Paul's theology in a practical and easy to comprehend way.

Andrew Bale

Life Beyond Death

White, Vernon (2006) London: Darton, Longman & Todd

The Afterlife

Resurrection

Hope

A wide-ranging and practical presentation and assessment of some key schools of thought regarding the afterlife. It is by no means comprehensive or heavy-weight but very thought-provoking, and deals in a deeply theological way with an issue of paramount practical and pastoral significance within our ministry. Very readable and a bit of a hidden gem, I think. Vernon White's Atonement and Incarnation is also very good and simple in the same way.

Ben Selfe

The God I Don't Understand: Reflections on Tough Questions of Faith

Wright, Christopher J. H. (2008) Grand Rapids: Zondervan

Genocide

The Cross

End Times

This is an honest, scholarly, yet approachable look at subjects such as the problem of evil, genocide in the Old Testament, the cross and the end of the world. Not an easy read, but certainly covers a lot of ground theologically.

Sarah King

Simply Christian

Wright, Tom (2006) London: SPCK

Jesus

Apologetics

Tom Wright has produced in this little book an extremely accessible introduction to understanding the Christian faith. Starting from the question of justice, Wright brings to the surface humanity's uneasy feeling that the world isn't quite the way it should be, and seeks for an answer. Ultimately this is found in Jesus and the Kingdom of God, though the author presumes little prior knowledge of this subject in the reader.

The follow up books in this series are also highly recommended and they make a good introduction to the deeper level writing of N.T. Wright.

This helpful book is so good I have owned four copies of it because I keep giving them away!

Marcus Mylechreest

Wright, Tom (2007) London: SPCK

Resurrection

Eschatology

This is an excellent and paradigm-shifting book which helps you explore the biblical view of resurrection, heaven and hope. It is a more accessible introduction to some of the themes in Tom Wright's outstanding Christian Origins and the Question of God series of books - particularly The Resurrection of the Son of God.

Creativity, Inc.: Overcoming the Unseen Forces That Stand in the Way of Untrue Inspiration

Catmull, E. (2014) London: Bantam Press

Creativity

Leadership

Team

Entrepreneurialism

The insights of Catmull really stood out for me. He critiques the attractive business-centric models of leadership and applies them to his own context of storytelling and film making. Many of these are equally applicable to the work of the local church and its surrounding support structure.

Catmull offers deep insight into the place of creativity and how to protect and enhance it from suffocating models of organisational structure.

NEW! Hit the Ground Kneeling: Seeing Leadership Differently

Cottrell, Stephen (2008) London: Church House Publishing

Spiritual Life

Leadership

Hitting the ground running doesn't take into account direction.

Hitting the ground kneeling seeks the direction first.

Stephen Cottrell admires good business and management practice but asks thought-provoking questions as to how we lead with God's heart, mind and priorities.

This book is written with humility and humour.

Daniels, A. C. (2000) New York: McGraw-Hill

Leadership

Performance
Management

This is the best book I have read on this subject in the past twenty years and it is very different from most other 'management' books. It offers ideas and tools on how to get the best out of a person. These ideas can be used in an office, life house, corps, at home, or anywhere where there are people. The ideas are grounded in a body of research literature and at the same time embody the Golden Rule. Where these concepts have been applied, people flourish.

Guy Poland

NEW! Measure of a Leader: The Legendary Leadership Formula for Producing Exceptional Performers and Outstanding Results

Daniels, A. C. & Daniels, J. E. (2007) New York: McGraw-Hill

Leadership

Management

Trust

I've recommended this book as it inspires us to be better leaders and it offers measurable ways to do this. Unlike other leadership books, Daniels looks at leadership, not by the qualities of the leader, but rather by the impact the leader has on the followers. This impact is quantified and measured and this information is used to inspire best leadership performance. This is a very practical and easy to follow book and is highly recommended for any leader.

The Power of the Story

The New Psychology of Leadership: Identity, Influence and Power

Haslam, S., Reicher, S., & Platow, M. (2010) Hove: Psychology Press

Leadership,
Psychology of

Social Identity

Group Identity

This book explores a new understanding and psychology of leadership, which presents leadership as a 'we' thing rather than about the leader as an individual. The premise of the book is that good leaders succeed when they promote, foster and nurture a sense of group identity, which they themselves represent and champion.

The book is both theoretical and practical and gives leaders clear insights into understanding group dynamics and a leader's place within the group.

Leadership on the Line: Staying Alive Through the Dangers of Leading

Heifetz, Ronald A., & Marty Linsky (2002) Boston: Harvard Business Review Press

Leadership

Change

Risk and

The Cost of Leadership

This book has been described as 'insightful and prophetic for The Salvation Army'. It's about leadership, leading change and the associated risks, challenges, and rewards. As one reviewer put it, 'It is tough love applied to the real world'. Helpful quotes include: 'People do not resist change, per se. People resist loss'; 'You place yourself on the line [as a leader] when you tell people what they need to hear rather than what they want to hear'.

This is helpful for Salvation Army leaders and is scholarly but accessible.

Michael Hutchings

Mentoring for Spiritual Growth: Sharing the Journey of Faith

Horsfall, Tony (2008) Abingdon: BRF

Mentoring

Horsfall takes the increasingly popular theme of mentoring and revisits both the philosophy and the biblical basis of the term.

His book introduces the concept of being a 'spiritual friend' moving away from the 'them and us' culture into a more equal relationship of accountability and trust. He addresses some of the challenges in mentoring including busyness and doubts with his own insightful reflections and concludes his book with helpful spiritual exercises which can be used in a variety of settings.

You are the Messiah and I should know

Lewis-Anthony, J. (2013) London: Bloomsbury

Leadership

Discipleship

Jesus

The sub-title of this book, 'Why leadership is a myth (and probably a heresy)' gives some indication that the concerns of the author echo those of authors such as Len Sweet ('I Am A Follower') and readers who appreciate the primacy of the call to faithfully follow Jesus may find some of the insights in this volume to be helpful. Lewis-Anthony essentially suggests that the church has looked towards the wrong examples to shape our understanding of what leadership should be, adopting the hero models of Hollywood, rather than the model of Jesus. He proposes that the kind of leadership exercised by Bonhoeffer, and the kind of communal transformation demonstrated in a film such as The Way, provides a better example of Jesus-centred leadership.

Malcolm Martin

Managing People for the First Time

Lewthwaite, Julie (2006) London: Thorogood

Employees

Management

The book contains excellent training material within a storybook context. Knowledge, theory and practice are all contained in a format that is easily digested and numerous self-assessment checklists help with reflection. It can be read as a whole or dipped in and out of as required. Although written for the novice manager in any work context, experienced managers would find this book helpful. When I read it, I wished it had been available to me in my first management role.

Holy Conversations: Strategic Planning as a Spiritual Practice for Congregations

Rendle G. & Mann A. (2013) New York: The Alban Institute

Congregational
Dialogue

Vision

Community

This book is a fantastic starting point for anyone involved in a dialogue with an individual corps or church about the process of change. It reduces the complicated process of mission consultancy to three questions: Who are we?, What has God called us to do or be? and Who is our neighbour?.

It then takes these questions and skilfully develops ways to conversationally dig deep within the context of congregation to release potential for new or renewed vision and mission.

For anyone embarking on or reviewing their own spiritual leadership, this book takes a close look at the key areas that affect our spiritual leadership health ranging from relationships, sabbath rest and temptations, to boundaries and team work.

Peter Scazzero uses his considerable experience and honest personal reflections to encourage the reader to examine internal battles before considering outward leadership qualities.

The Three Levels of Leadership: How to Develop Your Leadership Presence, Knowhow and Skill

Scouller, James (2014) Kemble: Management Books 2000 Ltd.

Leadership

A recent addition, this book is approachable, but it is for those intent on giving serious thought to leadership. This is not a Christian book, but applicable to Christian leadership.

Scouller identifies three levels of leadership - personal, private and public - and he also gives attention to an important question - that of the leader's psychology. He identifies four dimensions of leadership: motivating purpose; upholding group unity; task progress and results; attention to individuals.

A helpful quote from Scouller is, 'The leader does not have to provide all the leadership personally... He just has to make sure all four leadership dimensions are being addressed.'

Life-Long Learning

Ward offers an effective model and a bag of tools that empower individuals to invest in their ability to reflect theologically on the contexts in which they find themselves. Spiritual leaders would benefit from the principles found in the text that allow them to reflect on their own experience and work through a helpful process that brings new understanding or new areas of work or ministry.

This text is a must for your bookshelf and a great one to keep returning to when looking at reflective practice as a leader.

Music Practice Within The Salvation Army: Its History, Significance and Relevance in the 21st Century

Blyth, Andrew (2015) London: Salvation Army United Kingdom and Ireland, Music Ministries

Music

This work explores the history of music within The Salvation Army and why William Booth developed the music programme within the movement which has become an integral part of worship among many of its corps and centres. The future of Salvation Army music is presented and how it can adapt an essentially Victorian model to today's society.

Making Cell Groups Work: Navigating the Transformation to a Cell-Based Church

Boren, Scott (2002) Houston: TOUCH Outreach Ministries

Cell Church

Transitioning

This is an excellent book on managing a transition to a cell-based church. Rather than setting out a fixed programme, it enables a church to discover its own unique journey towards becoming a cell-based church.

This book is, in their own words, a work of theological (re)imagination and (re)construction'. It is a paradigm-shifting examination of the nature of the Ephesians 4 gifts in our understanding of mission and ecclesiology. NEW! Marginality: the Key to Multicultural Theology

Lee, J. Y. (2009) Oxford: Augsburg Fortress

Mission

Multicultural
Theology

"To transcend or to live in-beyond does not mean to be free of the two different worlds in which one exists but to live in both of them without being bound by either of them."

Jung Young Lee

In this work Jung Young Lee proposes a framework that justifies and undergirds the development of contextual theologies without itself becoming dominating. Lee aims to address the dilemmas of contextual theology not by moving one or another group from the margin to the center, but by redefining marginality itself as central. Marginality, he contends, is not only the experience of being outside the dominant group or in-between groups, but also "in-beyond" — a holistic, process-oriented definition that highlights the catalytic, transformative potential of living at the creative nexus of worlds. Lee's insight into marginality leads him directly into a new model for contextual theologies that focuses not on historical experience but on creative potential. His chapters work out concretely what such a notion can mean culturally, methodologically and doctrinally to a movement that professes to follow the very paradigm of creative marginality, Jesus Christ.

The Wild Gospel: Bringing Truth to Life

Morgan, Alison M. (2004) Oxford: Monarch Books

Truth

Dr. Morgan combines readable theology and personal testimony in this prophetic look at truth in church history and culture from the time of Jesus to the present day. Her intellectually rigorous, yet personal, writing is captivating, and provides a rich source of anecdote. Morgan notes, 'truth was not meant to be dissected - it was meant to be lived'. This is highly recommended for those who are weary of postmodernism and secularism and need refreshment.

Evangelism

Christendom

Theology

This is an academic reflection on the history and nature of evangelism. It is well written and provides some extremely helpful insights into the nature of evangelism. His postliberalism and pacifism are clearly identifiable in his writing, and his reliance on John Howard Yoder takes it all a little too philosophically at times, but overall it is a helpful and theological approach.

Social

Incarnation

This book has really made me question how we engage with the people in our community. Do we intend to give time and energy for people or, as Wells advocates, like Jesus, give ourselves to be with people and have a mutually beneficial relationship? This is a very challenging and thought provoking book

Mark Scott

Examining our motives in journeying with people, Samuel Wells helps the reader to move from working 'for' people in our social engagement to 'being with' people as we learn from each other and grow together.

This an excellent theological reflection including well grounded examples of missional engagement.

Forgiveness

This is a subject at the heart of both Scripture and Church life. Many people have to deal with forgiveness in their own life and often in a way that leaves feelings of guilt - people are often told to just forgive and forget and they struggle to do so.

This book helps the reader to think through this important and relevant part of our faith in a helpful and challenging way.

Pastoral Care

Forgiveness

This book uses a synergy of concepts of forgiveness in both Christian and contemporary psychology. This blending of expertise is handled in an exciting way by the authors who bring a wealth of knowledge and experience to their writing.

The persistent metaphor in this work is of face and encountering both God and fellow human beings face to face. Fusing Christian forgiveness and psychology brings a depth to this study which is both academically challenging and spiritually valuable.

Pastors, psychologists, family counsellors and students of psychology and theology will find The Faces of Forgiveness a helpful resource.

NEW! Dementia: Living in the Memories of God

Swinton, John (2012) London: SCM Press

Dementia

As the increasing effects of dementia are seen within society and reflected in our ageing congregations and family, one question is how do we respond and minister to this? John Swinton approaches this from a theological perspective grounded in individual stories. It is an excellent book as it questions some of our current understanding of how we, as Christians, view people with dementia. Swinton's assertion that 'we are because we are sustained in God's memory' is quite precious. This may well mean that we have to re-examine the way we minister to those with dementia.

Swinton, J. (2001) London: Jessica Kinglsey Publishers

Spiritual Care

Spirituality

Mental Health

This is a very practical book in which the author explores the connection between mental health and spirituality. This book points to the growing focus on the spiritual dimension in society, and yet looks at the way in which this has often been overlooked in the support and treatment of those with mental health issues.

The book explores the therapeutic benefits and significance of spirituality from the perspective of both the individual suffering with mental issues, as well as the carer. Specific mental health issues are explored in relation to spirituality including depression, bipolar, dementia, stress and anxiety.

With so many within our corps, centres and orbit of ministry suffering with mental health issues, or living with those suffering with mental health issues, for those who seek to offer pastoral and spiritual support this is a well written, practical and insightful book.

Reaching Out

Nouwen, Henri (1998) London: Fount

Loneliness

Solitude

Hospitality

Prayer

This is a really beautiful book.

This piece works through three movements that force the reader to dutifully reflect on their own faith and practice in respect of solitude, hospitality and prayer.

You may think this small book can offer you a quick read, however you may find that the depth of the text will force you to take it at a slower pace. Nouwen, as ever, offers a poetic portrayal of the Christian faith. His observations, which were written in the 1970s, are still hugely relevant to many of the major themes of our contemporary world.

This book would be good for people thinking about exploring a theology of hospitality, or for people working in pluralistic contexts.

Forming Intentional Disciples

Weddell, Sherry (2012) Huntington: Our Sunday Visitor

Church

Discipleship

Waddell is a committed Christian and a convert to Roman Catholicism. In the first half of the book, she bring statistics and stories together to give a brutally honest picture of the problems the Roman Catholic Church faces today. She gives some alarming statistics on current church decline.

The second half of the book is dedicated to practical and meaningful ways to make intentional disciples, firstly within the church, and then amongst those outside the church.

It would be great to see an honest, grace-filled book like this coming out of The Salvation Army, and taken seriously among its people.
